

JUROR

MARIA MINGALONE

Having been trained as an artist, Maria Mingalone's nontraditional background allows for a flexibility of mind, an instinct to respond to the unexpected, and the ability to take ideas and make them a reality. These skills, added to experience as an institutional leader, and a trained museum professional, empower her to envision the potential in people and things. Ms. Mingalone brings this distinctive skill set to her leadership as executive director at the Oceanside Museum of Art (OMA). She joined OMA in the fall of 2016 after fourteen years at the Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, where she oversaw the museum's exhibition, education, and public programs. She holds a Master's of Science degree in museum education and leadership from the Bank Street Graduate School of Education in New York, NY. Maria's background includes not only knowledge in curating and museum education, but also 25 years of progressive museum and nonprofit management expertise. As executive director at the Oceanside Museum of Art, Maria brings vision, continuity of leadership, and creative stability to this much loved San Diego institution.
